Background

Accounting education is a subject to an impetuous need for development, additionally marked by the uncertainty of the economic environment. In a world of financial scandals, corruption and bankruptcy, attention is directed with a reprehensible look to accounting education as well.

In order to keep up with the current challenges of global economy, accountants need a complex education that must combine intellectual abilities with training for a professional identity.

This workshop seeks to examine current influences on the effectiveness of accounting education. We are interested in research papers, case studies or research project presentations, which address teaching, learning and the curriculum area for those who major in accounting.

This workshop will be of interest to researchers active in this area, academics, policy-makers, managers and practitioners in accounting area.

Call for papers

The objective of the workshop “Accounting education – sharing knowledge in an ever changing world“ is to present and discuss in a stimulating academic environment research papers and projects exploring contemporary challenges in accounting education. Paper proposals by practitioners are also welcome.

The deadline for submission (preferably full papers) is Tuesday, September 15, 2009.

Acceptance will be notified by Friday, September 25, 2009.

Submission of final papers is Sunday, November 1, 2009.

There are no particular paper requirements. Papers should be submitted to alexandra.mutiu@yahoo.com.

Second Announcement

The Faculty of Economics and Business Administration within Babes-Bolyai University

invites you to attend the

ACCOUNTING AND AUDIT CONVERGENCE 2009 ANNUAL CONVENTION

November 25 – 27, 2009

The convention hosts a number of four international events focusing on different areas of research in accounting and audit. The aim is to create a stimulating environment that allows fruitful debates on various interest areas. An international convention enabling open discussion on the undertaking research of all the participants would therefore optimize individual experiences and bring its contribution to scientific knowledge.

The four events focusing on more narrow topics are the followings:

- Audit and Accounting Convergence Conference
The conference offers the opportunity for debate on issues related to the worldwide financial crisis and its connections with the accounting community.
- Workshop on Accounting Education – Sharing Knowledge in an Ever Changing World
In order to keep up with the current challenges of global economy, accountants need a complex education that must combine intellectual abilities with training for a professional identity. This workshop seeks to examine current influences on the effectiveness of accounting education.
- Accounting and the New Labor Process Symposium
The symposium provides a forum for broad range of research that deal with all aspects of critical accounting and the labor process. A broad range of research methodologies will be considered.
- Transylvanian Initiative for Accounting Research Development Workshop
The objective of the research workshop is to provide junior faculty and doctoral students with feedback and supportive discussions on their research activities prior to the resulting paper being submitted to a quality journal.
